Art Unit: 3731

Claims 16-19 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on May 27, 2004.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zehnder (2,697,433) in view of Ray (3,457,922). Zehnder discloses base (e.g. 36), guide platform (e.g. 46) rotatable about a common axis (col. 2, lines 57-58), pivot 45 disposed above the base 36 (As seen in figure 1, pivot 45 is disposed such that it extends above the base 36.), guide shaft 44 disposed at least partially within the pivot 45 (figure 4), the guide shaft 44 comprising radiopaque material (col. 3, lines 52-58) between a first end (the upper end as seen in figures 1 and 2) and a locus along the guide shaft normal to the longitudinal axis at the common point (the ring shaped locus of points which form the circumference of guide shaft 44 at the center of pivot 45), the radiopaque material extending to the locus. Zehnder fails to disclose a material which is less radiopaque located immediately adjacent the locus. However, Ray teaches that the pivot ball (13 or 18) of a stereotaxic probe guiding apparatus should be X-ray transparent plastic (col. 3, lines 12-14) apparently in order to obtain the advantages of better seeing the probe with X-rays as well as enabling the ball to be compressible (col. 3, lines 1-3) in order to be easily locked in place. It would have been obvious to make the pivot ball 45 of Zehnder of a material that is less radiopaque so that it too would have these advantages. With this modification, Zehnder would have a material which is less radiopaque located immediately adjacent the locus as claimed. As to claim 8, Zehnder discloses guide rod (e.g. 56 or 57) connected to the pivot (at least indirectly). As to claim 9, Zehnder discloses guide rod lock (col. 3, lines 22-28). As to claim 11, Zehnder discloses shaft 53. As to claim 12, Zehnder discloses outer rim (frame 10) which is inherently rotatable about the shaft axis prior to being fixed on the patient.

Applicant's arguments filed Oct. 27, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The phrase "above the base" in claim 1, line 6 is broad enough to include an object such as pivot 45 of Zehnder which extends to a point above the base.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
